Lorraine Carr is Now Mrs. Daniel L. Christen

First Baptist Church in Torrance was the setting for the four o'clock wedding last Saturday, June 2, uniting in marriage Miss Lorraine Marie Carr, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hartley E. Carr, 1544 Marcelina Ave., and Daniel L. Christen of Rockton, Ill. Mr. and Mrs. Charles Christen of Rockton, parents of the bridegroom, came to Torrance for the wedding.

As the guests assembled, Mrs. Arno Ouwendijk, organist, played a medley of nuptial music and accompanied Mrs. James Ramsey who sang "With This Ring" and "This is My Beloved."

The bride approached the altar on the arm of her father. Her wedding gown was of white peau de soie with a bell skirt. The English illusion veil was secured by white satin roses sprinkled with pearls. She carried a bouquet of white water lilies.

Miss Joanne Carr was her sister's maid of honor. She was gowned in turquoise taffeta with a bouffant nylon overskirt. Her flowers were turquoise and white gladioli.

Steven Ryan performed the duties of best man and usher were Jerry Duncan and Ralph Pegors.

The Rev. Robert Dehn officiated at the marriage.

A reception followed in the church hall. Mrs. Eddie Loo was in charge of the guest book.

A dinner was held in the evening at the Palms Restaurant for members of the wedding party and family.

The newlyweds will spend the summer in Rockton, Ill. In the fall, the bridegroom will continue his studies at LeTourneau College in Longview, Tex.

The bride was graduated from the Bob Jones University at Greenville, S. C., and has been employed by a Gardena firm.

Her husband is also a graduate of the Bob Jones University.

'Peace and Quiet, Vastly Overrated'

Dear Ann Landers: I was interested in your advice to the teenager who insisted he could study only when the radio, hi-fi or TV was going full blast. His mother didn't believe him. You suggested he re-train himself to study in peace and quiet.

As a psychologist who has spent his lifetime learning and teaching industry how to get maximum efficiency out of employees I'd like to point out that peace and quiet have been vastly overrated.

Music is a natural tranquilizer. Our studies show that factories and offices which have installed piped-in music are delighted with the increased efficiency and the improved dispositions of the employees. As an authority on the subject I can tell you that this is not just an intellectual theory. It actually works.—M.C.

Dear M.C.: Thank you for writing. The following letter is from one of those happy, efficient employees who has been listening to piped-in music. So she, too, is an authority.

Dear Ann Landers: Last fall our office manager decided we all needed music to calm our nerves and lift our spirits.

For the first week it was sort of a novelty. Everyone hummed, whistled or tapped their toes. Some of the younger ones danced. I didn't mind, although it was somewhat distracting. I kept telling myself I'd get used to it. I never quite made it.

Maybe I'm a sentimental fool but certain songs have special meaning for me. When I hear "Blues in the Night" or "Sunrise Serenade" or "Talk of the Town" I become completely unhinged.

Two months of night and day music set my teeth on edge. I found myself going to the washroom to escape it. Then—lo' and behold, one fine day when I opened the door to the washroom I was greeted by "You Are My Sunshine." The music man had invaded the most private of all sanctuaries.

Maybe I'm some kind of a
